Spray tanning is accomplished by application of a solution containing the active ingredient: DHA (Dihydroxyacetone). When applied, dihydroxyacetone reacts with dead cells in the skin's surface layer to temporarily darken the skin and simulate a tan. The colouring typically wears off after a few days. DHA is generally considered to be safe; you should take measures where possible to protect your eyes and avoid inhalation through the mouth & nose.

That said, all people and all skin types are different; whilst ingredients used in this procedure are intended for cosmetic use and generally regarded as safe, there are however, occasions where individuals may be allergic to one or more ingredients in the spray tan solution. Please ensure you have a Patch Test completed at least 24 hours before your full body tan. If you have any concerns regarding current or previous skin conditions you should consult a GP or pharmacist prior to booking.

Please be advised there is a small percentage of people whose skin may not react favourably to spray tanning. For this reason, we do NOT advise being sprayed for the first time when your appearance is critical; (wedding/special occasion/prom) we would recommend a practice session or 'trial run' 30 days before your event, for best results.

Other considerations:

- Common Sense Caution – Pregnant or nursing women should consult their GP prior to Spray Tanning. Even though there are no known risks to your baby from using fake tan during pregnancy, there is a risk you could have an allergic reaction. Each pregnancy is different, your medical care provider may prefer a more cautious approach based on your specific needs and health concerns.
- Warning – This product does not contain a sunscreen and does not protect against sunburn. Repeated exposure of unprotected skin to U.V. Light may increase the risk of skin aging, skin cancer and other harmful effects to the skin even if you do not burn.
- Aftercare / Tan Transfer - we recommend you attend your Spray Tan appointment wearing loose dark clothing; some of the tan solution may transfer to your clothes following application. It is also advisable to take precaution to cover light coloured car seats if you are driving home. If you are sleeping in your tan before washing off avoid light colour bedding as this will likely transfer.
